

Throughout this semester, I've gained a lot of knowledge when it comes to multimodality and using multiple ways to portray information. For example, for the first major assignment, it was a multimodal assignment which I included an essay and pictures in. I had to do thorough research to make sure the images went with what I had in my essay. Even though this was a challenging feat at first and it still sometimes is, I've been able to tie images to writing more easily since then. In addition, I've learned more about how to cite modes of literature, both in the essay and for the works cited section. The second major assignment is when I really had to learn about citing other forms of literature, as I had to properly cite a song and a movie. This proved to be a challenge at first, as I knew close to nothing about what would go into the proper citations, but with the help of the research I've done throughout the different drafts and with the help of my professor, I was able to gain this much-needed knowledge.
